IN ONE SENTENCE

Clear value points, multiple creative angles and a low-friction form helped the campaign stand out in a crowded property advertising market.

From property interest to a clear enquiry

The campaign was created for a real-estate offer that needed consistent enquiries from Facebook and Instagram. The job was not simply to generate clicks. It was to make the offer easy to understand and give genuinely interested prospects a straightforward next step.

CAMPAIGN OBJECTIVE

Generate a consistent flow of property enquiries through Meta Instant Forms.

MY ROLE

Campaign structure, creative direction, copy, setup, lead-form build and ongoing optimization.

The challenge

Property advertising is crowded, and many campaigns use the same language and visual style. A generic ad can attract curiosity without producing useful enquiries. This campaign needed a clear offer, mobile-first creative and a form that did not feel like work.

Lead-form setup

Performance monitoring and optimization

WORKING PRINCIPLE

Property ads perform better when the user can understand the value quickly and enquire without navigating a complicated process.

A campaign built around clarity and choice

Rather than depending on one ad, the campaign used several message and creative angles while keeping the underlying offer consistent.

01

Prioritize the strongest value points

The campaign focused on the property details most likely to matter, then translated them into short, direct ad copy.

02

Prepare multiple creative angles

Several visual and message variations were developed so performance did not depend on a single advertisement.

03

Keep the lead journey simple

The form was easy to complete on mobile while still collecting enough information for a useful sales follow-up.

04

Shift attention to the winners

Ads were reviewed against lead volume and cost. Weaker variations were refined or paused while stronger ones received more attention.

How the optimization worked

The campaign improved by comparing individual ads rather than treating the entire ad set as one result.

WHAT WE WATCHED Lead volume, average cost per lead, ad-level performance and form completion.

The campaign result

The campaign generated 156 platform-reported property leads at an average cost of AED 3.21 per lead, maintaining efficient lead flow in a highly competitive category.

What made it work

A clear property message, relevant creative and a low-friction enquiry process can outperform an ad overloaded with claims.

Key takeaway

The campaign succeeded by making the choice easier for the prospect. The strongest information was visible quickly, the creative offered variety and the form gave interested users a direct route to the sales conversation.
